CHRISTMAS WISHES - The production team (i.e. Jane and Tom) thank all our contributors, advertisers and readers for making this magazine possible. Without your support, we would not have a Three Towers magazine.

CONDOLENCES – to Ethel Brown, her family and friends on the loss of one of Swinstead’s longest and much-loved residents, Mr George Brown, who passed away on Wednesday 13 November. George was a founding member of the committee that formed to run the Swinstead Village Hall, including the licensed bar, aptly named George’s Bar. This community-run facility remains the hub of the village and is a lasting tribute to George and the other 12 founding members of the committee.

BAPTISM Margaret Ann Hammond, baby daughter of James and Harriet, on 27 October at St Michael and All Angels Church, Edenham.

CONDOLENCES to family, friends and neighbours of Pamela Pohling Brown, who passed away suddenly at home on 11 November after a long illness. Pamela was the only daughter of the late Ellen and Laurie Brown, and had lived in Witham on the Hill for many years. She was a keen bell ringer and supporter of St Andrew’s Church.

THANK YOU - to Simon Lawton and his team for another fantastic Toft cum Lound and Manthorpe Bonfire Night. The display seems to get better every year. Thank you too to our cooks and servers and all who gathered to enjoy the evening.

THANK YOU - to all who organised and took part in Swinstead ‘s Low Noise Family Fireworks Display. The evening went off with a bang with this year drawing in more families, spectacular colourful fireworks, children and adults enjoying themselves before and after the Fireworks in the hall, hot

USING PASSWORDS TO PROTECT YOUR DATA AND DEVICES

Create Strong Passwords: The more unusual your password is, the more difficult it is for a criminal to work out. Don't use predictable passwords such as dates, family or pet names.

Combine 2 or more random words to create a single memorable password.

Or better, use a password manager app to create and store them for you. These are often free with your anti-virus package or within your operating system – Windows or Apple IOS. Not only can password managers create really strong and very long passwords that I defy anyone to remember, you only ever need to remember one password - the one that opens up your password manager.

Remember! If your smart device was delivered with a default password – change it!

2-Step Verification: Set-up two-step verification (2SV) for added security. 2SV adds an extra step when you log in, usually by giving you a code to enter from an app or a text message.

This makes it harder for a criminal who may know your password from getting easy access to your accounts.

To be secure you should set this up for all your important accounts (email, social media etc) even if you have a strong password.

Find out how to set this up on popular services at: <https://www.ncsc.gov.uk/guidance/setting-2-step-verification-2sv>

Stolen Password: To check to see if your details have appeared in a data breach, you can use an online tool such as: <https://haveibeenpwned.com/>. Similar password warning tools may be available in your anti-virus or your password manager.

The Wilsthorpe Effigy

In April of 2021 the editor of the Three Towers in his wisdom published an article of mine entitled “Recumbent Effigies” describing the several stone figures of knights in armour, and sometimes their ladies, to be found in churches in our area.

Since then more information has come to light regarding the effigy at St. Faith’s church at Wilsthorpe (pictured). St. Faith’s is one of the smallest churches in South Lincolnshire. It was built in 1715 as a replacement for an earlier church, underwent extensive changes in the 1860s, and is a mixture of classical and gothic styles. The church is in a delightful rural spot, backing onto fields in this very quiet village.

The effigy is to the left of the altar, beyond the rail, in a dark corner of the church up against the north and east walls. In fact it just fits between the altar rail and the east wall. In such a small church there is probably nowhere else to put it. Its position restricts close viewing and photography but that is a minor consideration. The legs are crossed, the right foot is missing, the other rests on what appears to be a faithful dog. The shield on his left arm is hard up against the wall. His head rests on a pillow and the right arm is across the chest grasping the top of his shield. He has two swords, one beneath the shield the other on his right hip although this may be a dagger. Sadly, much of the detail on the shield and on his belt is worn, presumably lost to the centuries.

It is interesting that Sir Nikolaus Pevsner in his “Buildings of England – Lincolnshire” (2nd edition) claims that the effigy with the arms of the Wake family must be a 17th century fake. He says “the crossing of the legs is improbably done, and the surcoat and its carved pattern is also improbable. The way the hand lies instead of holding the shield has no parallel. Finally, although all this tends to convey a date about 1300, the lavish belt and the moustache would spell 1375 or so”. Pevsner does not think much of the church either, using terms such as “cruel alterations” in the 1862 rebuilding, and “the ridiculous shingled broach-spire”. The Shell Guide to Lincolnshire by Thorold and Yates (published 1965) is not a fan of the church either, describing the pinnacled exterior as “comic”. The church is listed Grade II*, the description of the building describes the effigy as “late 13th century, recut”, as does Historic England.

It is fortunate that the church authorities are unmoved by any criticism of their church or effigy. They have written and displayed useful information, propped up on the organ, describing the effigy as “a stone figure of a knight believed to be circa 1340 bearing a shield with the arms of the Wake family to which the famous Hereward is supposed to have belonged. An inscription in English around the hem of his tunic reads: “Peace is better than war”. Sadly, none of this detail could be seen as the effigy is badly worn. There is even graffiti scratched on his person. On a visit to Barholm Church in July 2011 I met the then vicar, Carolyn Kennedy, who was also vicar of St. Faith’s.

She told me that the Heraldry Society have investigated the effigy and have pronounced that it dates from 1340 to 1350 and is in the style of tournament armour.

The Wake family of Lincolnshire claim descent from Hereward the Wake (died 1072) who gained fame by raising rebellion against William the Conqueror. Hereward had a daughter named Turfrida by his second wife, Alfruda. Descending from Alfruda and at the end of a long and tortuous genealogical path comes John (1268 – 1300), created the first Lord Wake in 1295. He served King Edward I, campaigning in Gascony between 1288 and 1297 and against the Scots from 1297 to 1300. He fought in the battle of Falkirk in 1298. John's son Thomas, 2nd Lord Wake (1297 – 1349), also fought against the Scots for King Edward II.

Another branch of the Wake family includes Sir Hugh Wake (1202-1241) who fought in Brittany with King Henry III and died on Crusade in the Holy Land fighting the Saracens with Simon de Montfort. His grandson, another Thomas (1280-1347), was present in France with King Edward III, where he fought at Crecy in 1346, and at the siege of Calais in 1347, where he died. There must be other family members of a martial disposition. Members of the Wake family of Lincolnshire were also Lords of the Manor of Bourne, and of Deeping.

It is far too much to expect that the effigy is one of these warriors. And if so, how come he is commemorated in a tiny church in deepest Lincolnshire? Due to his age, he must have been moved from another church, perhaps the forerunner of St. Faith's at Wilsthorpe. The identity remains an enduring mystery. Or possibly a fake, or even re-cut. Surely this is part of the attraction. A trip to Wilsthorpe is highly recommended, and then the visitor can form his or her own opinion.

The Vicar Writes

“The Word became flesh.” We hear those words so often at Christmas that their true meaning can easily be lost on us. We usually associate them with the child in Bethlehem’s manger (and rightly so) but we all too easily dismiss them without being shocked or surprised by what they tell us. “The Word became flesh” the Gospel writer tells us and we all nod or yawn in passive agreement.

But the Greek philosophers of the first century didn’t yawn. They were appalled! It wasn’t that God couldn’t have become flesh but why would God want to become flesh in the first place? To them, the flesh was bad and the body evil. If they could have lived outside of the body then they would have but they couldn’t! So, they tolerated the body as a necessary vessel to house the soul. The Greek word used by the Gospel writer for ‘flesh’ is the same that St Paul chose to describe human nature in all its weakness and sin. So, when God became flesh, he became acquainted with all the desires, problems and temptations that go with ordinary human life (which is why the Word becoming flesh didn’t seem at all desirable to the Greeks).

After all, who wants a God who’s just like us? What we want is a God who rules over us, who shows us everything that we can never hope to be, and whose knowledge and goodness are always above and beyond us. But isn’t that exactly what the Gospel writer is trying to tell us? The God whom no-one has ever seen has suddenly become visible! But the Word becoming flesh isn’t a sign that God has somehow been diminished by embracing the lesser stature of humanity, rather, that the God who made everything has come to dwell among us in human form.

In a sense, God is always looking for a place to dwell. God is present (discernible) in the words of Scripture, in the bread and wine of the Eucharist, in the beauty of art and architecture, in the stirring drama of great works of literature. God was present at the Red Sea, on Mount Sinai and in the Temple at Jerusalem. But ultimately, God didn’t choose to become a book, a painting or a building... God took on human form. The Word became flesh.

There’s a song by an American singer Joan Osbourne from the 1990s that asked, “If God had a face, what would it look like?” Maybe that question should be rephrased as a statement: “God has a face and it looks like your face, like my face and the faces of people everywhere.” Consequently, if people want to know what God looks like, (and I believe they do) then they're going to have to look at us (his people) to find out more. People who want to experience something of God's presence won't find it in clever arguments, logical thinking or scientific proof. It's much more likely that they'll come to know what God is like through knowing God's people; through getting to know the likes of you and me.

Think about it – people who experience love don't do so by reading about it in a book. They experience love through other people. There's plenty about God for people to read about in the Scriptures but it won't really make sense to them unless they come to know women and men who appear in the flesh in the same way that God appears on the page!

That doesn't mean we have to be perfect (we know that we aren't) but it does compel us to take seriously the fact that God's spirit dwells within us; within our flesh. We can't be perfect people but we can be so responsive to the spirit of God within us that, "the life of Jesus may also be manifested in our bodies" (2 Corinthians 4.10).

Our purpose is not to worship God with our souls, while disregarding our bodies as if they don't matter. Our earthly life isn't about having a pure heart but paying no attention to our physical selves. Instead, we need to present our whole selves as available to God because we carry the Good News in these bodies of ours, as well as in our hearts and minds.

It's always nice to hear people say, "Isn't your Church beautiful". They're right of course, especially at this time of year but often they only see part of the Church – they only see the building! They miss the best part if they don't see all those occasions when the Church literally becomes the Good News, when the Word becomes flesh in us.

The Word becoming flesh in Bethlehem is a powerful statement about God's presence in Jesus but it's also more than that. The Word becoming flesh also leads us toward one another; pointing us to a new community where we can recognise the common dignity of all God's children. For, if we're all made in the image of God, if we are all distinct revelations of God, then each of us is carrying within us a message and experience that the rest of the world needs to hear.

Every person carries within their flesh something of their Creator. Some reflected truth which could lead us to a deeper understanding of God, together with gifts which could enhance our mission, strengthen our community and help to make the world a better place.

So, this Christmas, may we be open to receive the Good News which all God's people embody; learning and receiving from them as they learn and receive from us and may the love of God be seen and recognised in our love for each other, both now and always.

Witham on the Hill WI

November 2024

The speaker, Rosemary Sneath, a former Norland Nanny, told us she was born in Moulton with an older brother to parents active in the community. Aged 10, she went to the cinema with her aunt to watch “Mary Poppins” and decided it sounded like fun, so decided to be a nanny! At 16 she went for an interview and was accepted. She received a grant from the Council as it was a fee-paying college: £200 per term in 1970s!

Trainee uniform was from Harrods – brown check overall, brown cardi, brown raincoat and headscarf. The course was 5 terms, which included needlework, cooking, working in playschools and hospitals – maternity and children’s wards, and learning about childhood illnesses like croup and leukaemia.

Nurses were taught to speak properly, expected to have meals with children to show them how to eat correctly and she had to do their washing and ironing.

While in training she cared for children in the College – respite care, diplomats’ children, the homeless and those left there while parents went on holiday. Small babies slept in the nanny’s room.

She took her exam for NNEB on 14 November 1973 (the day Princess Anne married Mark Phillips!) Once qualified, she was measured for her uniform at Harrods – including hat and gloves which had to be worn when outside, hair always tied up. Then she had to find a family – advised not to go for an Arab family, or Royalty (no time off!).

As Rosemary was keen on horses she found a stud farm in Newmarket with 2 children. She had good fun taking the children to lots of places and became part of the family. After 3 years the children went to boarding school – time for her to move on to another family in Bury St Edmunds. Eventually she married a farmer and had her own family. She started her own playschool, then worked as a teaching assistant in Spalding. She has worked with children all her life and loved it.

The next meeting will be on Tuesday 3 December at 7.30pm in St Andrew’s Parish Hall, Witham on the Hill. It is our Christmas party with gin tasting from Redsmith Distillery. Please bring a small plate of food to share. Visitors and new members are always very welcome - entry fee £5. For more information contact Jane Clark, Secretary, tel 01778 590232.
